MMF Wall of Fame

From 'Village kid' to 'Gifted man'

It is yet another year and I would like to take this opportunity to welcome you into the year 2012 and wish you all God's blessings in the new year. It is my sincere hope that as we move into this new year, we may assess our lives and our purpose to come up with ways in which we can help each other grow and also make an impact in the lives of all those we come into contact with. An old saying goes that, a candle loses nothing by lighting another candle.

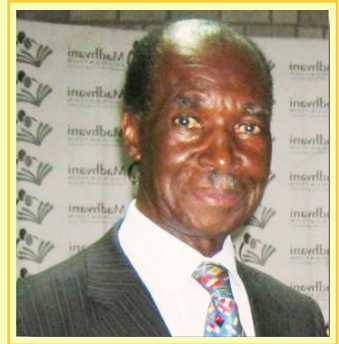

Last year, the Foundation hosted its Annual General Meeting and it was a pleasure to see you all who managed to attend. The Meeting brought to light some of the challenges that some of our former beneficiaries are facing such as unemployment. It is from that meeting and a few others that the foundation found it necessary to organize among its yearly activities training sessions designed to equip our former beneficiaries with self sustaining entrepreneurial skills as well as skills required by many organizations that seek to hire qualified individuals. It is our dream to see you all prosper and share the goodness that you have received with others because there is much joy in giving than in receiving. It is also why this issue is focussed on guiding you on what to expect after graduation. There will be challenges at every turn but only through perseverance will you come out on top.

We are pleased to announce the 2012/2013 Scholarships are now open and UGX 600m has been set aside to assist students in need. You are encouraged to visit our website for more information and to download the application forms.

In this issue, you will also find the touching story of one young man, Franco Tumuhimbise whose life was heavily impacted by the scholarship and he now looks after an orphan from his village. He is a big inspiration even to us and we wish him all the best in his future endeavours. As the board we continue hoping for more positive commitment towards your Association in order to build it into the powerful Association it has the potential of becoming. The board members of the Foundation have enormous faith in you and encourage you to work twice as hard to turn yourselves into a force to be reckoned with. We believe in time you will become a self sustaining organisation with a capacity to compliment the efforts of your founding father.

With these few words I welcome you to the second issue of the MMF newsletter.

Mr Henry Kyemba,
Chairman MMF Scholarship Committee

Message from the Muljibhai Madhvani Alumni Association Chairman

As the new chairman of the Muljibhai Madhvani Alumni Association (MMASS), I would like to seize this opportunity to congratulate each alumni on your individual achievements in life over the years. I must sincerely thank the MMASS Patron, Hon. Henry Kyemba for his invaluable effort in nurturing and promoting the good intentions of MMASS. I am also particularly honored to thank the Muljibhai Madhvani Board for their generosity and foresighted leadership that has prioritized the education of the intellectually able but financially handicapped Ugandans.

To the Board, I would like to say, that a good deed is never lost. He who sows courtesy, reaps friendship; he who plants kindness, gathers love; pleasure bestowed on a grateful mind is never sterile, but generally gratitude begets reward. I have no doubt that anyone who contributes to prosperity must prosper in turn. We look forward to seeing your continued prosperity.

The MMASS leadership has agreed that the biggest challenge so far is unemployment among members. We shall hence devote much of our efforts this year in trying to answer the question; "After graduation, what next?" The MMASS leadership believes that wise people don't just wait for the right opportunity, they create the right opportunity. Actuating the said belief will call for the active participation of all the 'giants' among us to stand out and play an active role in helping each other, remembering that at some point in time, some body else rendered the same helping hand at the time when we could not help ourselves. This is where our collective success lies, for like the common saying goes- "A dwarf on a giant's shoulders sees the further of the two." Being a part of success is more important than being personally indispensable.

I encourage each of the alumni to find something to do this year that will leave a mark in another person's life. By so doing, we shall make the world a better place to live in.

With those few remarks, I wish all of you a fruitful 2012 and look forward to seeing your active participation in our upcoming activities.

Muwaganya Jonathan
Chairman MMASS

Recap of the 2011 MASS Annual AGM

The Madhvani Foundation Alumni Association MASS continues to grow every year, as various universities hold graduation ceremonies for graduates in their respective disciplines. It is therefore statutory for an Annual General Meeting (AGM) to be held.

An AGM was held in October 2011 at the National Water and Sewerage Corporation Resource Centre, in Bugolobi. This was the second of its kind.

Guests arrived at exactly 10am and began to interact as they took up seats. Each individual was presented with a notepad, pen and refreshment. By 11:30 am, a good number had turned up and the meeting was set to begin.

The chairman Muljibhai Madhvani Alumni Association-Ronald Kokasi Odinga opened the meeting by welcoming everyone. The chairman of the out going committee (Roland Kokasi) appreciated the Foundation for its continued support and asked members to be committed and pay their annual subscription fee so as to enable the smooth running of the activities of the association.

We observed a moment of silence for one of our Fathers Mr. Manubhai Madhvani (RIP) who passed on early this year and left with blessings from the rain.

At 11:45am the Chairman of the Madhvani Foundation scholarship committee and the patron MMASS welcomed everyone. Hon. Henry Kyemba advised the Alumni fraternity to put their heads together and accomplish that which can only be achieved through togetherness. In his continued remarks he said, "the Board members have great faith in the Association and believe it will become self sustaining with the capacity to complement the realm of our founding father."

David Lambert Tumwesigye, promoter of the 360 network gave a key note address. He talked to us about the Link between personal excellence and success that, successful people focus on getting better other than being good. He went on ahead to say that, the best people are not those that do things right but success belongs to those that do the right thing. If you are excellent, success will find you. Grow your abilities. Do not count on your luck. He advised us to read the Harvard Business Review Blocs to help us know how we can excel and let opportunities knock at our doors.

His speech was closely followed by a presentation on the tenure reports by the executive committee.

An enthusiastic auctioning session followed. This was done American style by the MMASS treasurer. The auction item was bought for Beatrice Apoto-administrator of madhvani scholarship foundation. One would say it was a "thank you" for her noble gestures as she handed tuition checks to the alumni.

Nomination, campaigns, election of the chairperson and committee MF Alumni Association 2012/2013 was carried out. Successful individuals were announced and congratulated. This was followed by an acceptance speech by the incoming chairperson.

The patron and guest speaker awarded certificates to the outgoing committee and thanked them for their commendable work during their term of service. The outgoing committee in turn handed over to the incoming committee.

The meeting was closed at 3:30pm with a few remarks from the Board secretary, and guests allowed to depart at leisure.

On behalf of the executive committee we wish to extend sincere gratitude to everyone who made it to the meeting and to people who rendered support towards the success of the fair. Special thanks to the Muljibhai Madhvani group.

Elizabeth.

After Graduation, What Next?

“Consider moving back in with your parents. Less stress, less financial demands and more time to look for a job. Plus a daily dose of advice might be a good source of motivation. Sorry parents..It is a sign of the times.”

Another graduation, another time to celebrate, another time for the graduates to throw their hats up in the air; this time, not so much to symbolically toss off the rigors of academic work as to throw caution to the wind. Here we come, they might say, to an uncertain world where our academic qualifications may not amount to much more than the pristine certificates that we have been handed.

As the young graduates walk out of the gates of the various universities, many of them will be thinking very hard about their next step. Leaving University no longer offers any guarantees for much needed employment these days. And even for those that will be lucky to find employment, translating much of what has been learnt in the lecture halls into the practical realities of today's competitive world of work remains an uphill task.

Many graduates leave universities with only what is termed as “basic skills” grounded mainly in theoretical knowledge and less on practical skills. This spells a daunting task on their part. Before thinking of heavy pay cheques, graduates need to identify places where they can work as volunteers to achieve much needed experience and contacts. They also need to contact professional bodies to connect them to companies where they can do internships.

There is concern among recruiters today about the preparedness (or lack of it) of today's graduates to take on the world of work. And it is not about them lacking experience. Many of them lack the exposure to enable them compete. Today's university graduates fail badly at presentation skills, expression, etiquette and focus. From inappropriate dress codes to informal accents during job interviews, this makes their responsibility to take on demanding job questionable. This therefore, brings in factors like ability to adhere to work environments, up bringing and socialization into focus. People's family back ground and other non academic values are crucial in this regard.

So how does the Alumni Association help, one may ask. There is no better chance for job seekers to meet potential employers than through networking. The Association offers a platform for one to exhibit their working potential through making contributions such as writing for the newsletter, university visits to encourage upcoming Alumni and “defending your classification” to your colleagues. A network of friends provides the greatest opportunity for development and culture and unity.

Now is the time to be aggressive, and go into commando mode. Use new tools and technology to help with your job search. Join LinkedIn, start a Facebook page that focuses on your professional persona.

Here are more tips you can adopt:

Consider moving back in with your parents. Less stress, less financial demands and more time to look for a job. Plus a daily dose of advice might be a good source of motivation. Sorry parents..It is a sign of the times.

If you can't find a job, try volunteering or an unpaid internship. This is a great opportunity to hone your skills and make connections in your field of study.

Network, network, network. Don't just rely on the Internet...you must meet people in person. As the old adage goes, 'sometimes it's more about WHO you know than WHAT you know.'

Practice your interview skills! – join groups of friends or fellow graduates and fine-tune your presentation skills.

Research companies you are interested in. Don't just send out gobs of resumes to every Tom, Dick and Harry. Refine your search and make sure you are polished when given the opportunity to make a connection.

Research the person you are meeting with. Did you go to the same school or have the same hobbies? This is a great way to start the conversation and make the interviewer like you. Remember...people hire people they like, and that person may not be the best person on paper.

Focus on entry level jobs even if they are not in your field. You need to add business experience to your resume. You may also have to get your hands dirty.

From 'Village Kid' to 'Gifted Man'

I was born and grew up in a very poor family, in fact we were poor to the extent that even the poor neighbors used to refer to us as the poor!(literary, they meant that despite the fact that they were poor, we were poorer!).

My parents supported me up to primary six when they plunged into serious financial and consequential marital challenges which saw them flee home and leave me and my little sister then as 'village kids' (word for street kids if it was a town/city), at the mercy of whoever wished to care, our land, wood and wattle structures thereon were attached by creditors and later sold off. As misfortunes never come singly, our grandmother in whom we had found solace and comfort during these trying times passed on the following year. Survival was not even by the bare minimum but by the maximum mercies of God. My sister went on to live with our mother's family while i stayed in a makeshift tent-like shelter I had made in one of the bushy areas where I went on to stay for six years to come. A concerned citizen then offered to pay all my school fees from S1-S4 while studying under the difficult conditions. I remember I used to walk for 25 kilometers to and from school daily, living in no home and having no meals at school; nevertheless, God was on my side. I could not support myself after S.4; however I proceeded to a level all by myself. I could sell some sugar-canes I had grown in one of the valleys and I would also ride a borrowed bicycle for 80 kilometers to a town where my father had sought refuge to ask him for some money, of course he had no job and was desperate. I was a drowning swimmer trying to seek safety by clutching at a straw. He could give me almost nothing but I would still appreciate anything he gave because he had and still has a big heart only that he had nothing to give and one cannot give what he/she doesn't have(the principle of 'Nemo dat quod non habet' in law).

I eventually dropped out of school at the end of Senior 5 and went to Mbarara town to do an odd hotel job earning 15,000 Shs per month subject to cost of plates, cups and other utensils that I would accidentally break in the course of my work of the month. I remember one month the cost of break-ages was 25,000 Shs implying that the due salary for that month was negative (-) 10,000; I had to work for another month. All that I benefitted was food and shelter in the hotel after the close of the business. In fact, I ate and drunk so much that I started to look so healthy because I was eating 'angrily' to compensate for everything and some times I would say useless prayers like 'God, why don't you let customers stay away such that I eat all the food that will be left over at the end of the day'!

In 2002, i was admitted to a Primary Teachers' College since it was the only institution I could afford and with the help of the then Bushenyi District Chairperson Mr. Longino Ndyanabo I was offered a place despite the delayed application for admission. I graduated in 2004 among the top students countrywide. I was content but far from academic satisfaction and shortly after, I got a scholarship to study at Kabale Nursing School but still, the profession was far from my passion. I then decided to seek a university degree, so I started reading 'A' Level books and notes which I borrowed from a friend of mine who had completed his education at Mbarara High School.

In 2005, I registered for HED/G and General paper exams which I sat for in November Kabale private hall. I scored 3ACCD(18 Points) and was admitted to Makerere for a bachelors of laws degree under private sponsorship but still I could not make it due to my financial position at that time. I opted to go to Mbarara for a bachelor of Business Administration degree. Even though tuition was equally high, I preferred Mbarara for the fact that admission terms were more negotiable than at Makerere and there were short term opportunities to do odd jobs and teach in the nearby primary schools. I could not afford anything, however I had no alternative but to go without necessities; not even a mattress, beddings, scholastic materials or tuition but the inherent determination to succeed and the rarely found faith. Entering the gate of the university was in Itself, to me, an achievement.

I started studying by 'blind' faith and before I knew it, I had, through the odd jobs, teaching in the nearby primary schools, small loans and financial assistance, paid the tuition for the first semester. I would live anywhere I had a relative, friend or a kind person and survive by God's grace. I finished the first semester and passed with a good Cumulative grade point average. I lost the jobs at the beginning of the second semester and things became worse for me. Two days to the end of second semester and to my application for a dead year, I cried bitterly to God and he answered me. There was a 'money mouth' game on one radio: Capital Fm in Kampala, the rules of this game are, inter alia, that you speak about a given topic without repetition, deviation and hesitation for one minute and win the money which appreciates every time one fails. It had accumulated to almost 3.5 million and on 16th April 2007, I participated and miraculously won the money to my disbelief! I boarded a bus to Kampala to claim my prize despite the fact that they give the winner 30 days after he/she has won. I was to do exams on Friday or get a dead year and it was Wednesday, but God is always on time. I stayed for a night and when the chief accountant found

"I dropped out of school at the end of Senior 5 and went to Mbarara town to do an odd hotel job at 15,000 Shs per month excluding the plates, cups and other utensils that I would accidentally break in the course of my work of the month."

“God sent a savior through Madhvani Muljubhai Foundation Scholarship. This was a turning point in my life.”

me the following morning after having chased me the previous day, he sat me down and asked for the whole story after which he obliged and wrote for me a draft cheque of all the outstanding tuition which I took back to Mbarara university on Friday morning and they gladly accepted and allowed me to sit for the papers that Friday evening!. I left my Bank account with the Capital FM accountant and they credited it with the balance. I got all the personal and educational basic and non basic needs and I gave glory to God.

Still, the money was not enough to take me through the next semester, that is when God sent me the Madhvani Foundation scholarship. This was my life changing moment. I saw an advert in the newspapers and did all the needful, shoved off all the discouraging words (including ‘it is not genuine’, ‘they offer the scholarships to people they know’, ‘you must be introduced by a powerful person.’ etc.)

I was short listed and expected to go to Makerere University (senate building) to face the panel of interviewers. I admit it was not easy during the interviews but I had prepared for them and was confident, although the little fear of the unknown incase I could not get the award still loomed. I encouraged myself in the Lord like David (1Sam 30:6).

The UACE results were released through the press and I saw ‘TUMUHIMBISE FRANCO’ - My name! I jumped up with joy, excitement and jubilation. We were 151 awardees and I was number 91. My life changed since then and I have never looked back. I concentrated on my studies and went on to excel. MMF made me rich academically, financially, emotionally and spiritually because I started believing God more than anything and devoted more time to serving him. I successfully completed and graduated on 30th Jan 2010. Before my final exams in May 2009, I applied for a job in Compassion International which had been advertised in the press. I didn't have what they needed but the scholarship achievement had boosted my faith I was ready for more blessings. I was invited for interviews and excelled both in written and oral, emerging second best overall. I did not have the transcript and post graduate certificates they wanted but it didn't matter. I had applied for a junior post but upon excelling, they asked me to apply for any of the senior jobs they had advertised. I applied for the post of Project Director and was subsequently hired to my disbelief. I was allowed to complete my last semester of school and was given an appointment letter. The salary for the first two months was paid to me even before I started working. I couldn't recognize myself anymore because if it had not been for the MMF scholarship, I would be no where.

Since then I have gone on to seek more professional development from The Institute of Certified Public Accountants of Uganda. I did postgraduates in project planning and management, public administration and management from Makerere University and a certificate in administrative law from the Law Development Centre. I was recommended and recruited as an accountant for the East African Business Week. Today, I am studying for my CPA papers as well as a bachelors degree of laws at Makerere University Law school.

I can hardly express the fulfillment Muljhibhai Madhvani Foundation gave to me. I am very proud of my background because I believe that my ultimate measure is not where I stand in moments of comfort and convenience, but where I stand at times of challenge and controversy. I am immeasurably indebted to MMF, for changing my life. Today, I look after an orphan from my village and it is a very fulfilling experience to touch someone else's life the way mine was.

Appreciation for the Scholarship

I Ssempe Zaamu here by sincerely appreciate the scholarship I got from the Madhvani Foundation which lasted for one academic year (2009/2010) at Kyambogo University.

I did a Bachelor in Science Technology (Biology) of Kyambogo University which was a three years course; I am now through with the above course. I graduated in the last 7th graduation ceremony of Kyambogo University which took place on 10th Feb. 2011.

The appreciation seems to be a bit late, but I have been still stranded to find out which words I would use to express my appreciation but I have ended-up with still these same few words, "THANK YOU SO MUCH". Big thanks go to the Madhvani Foundation founders and sponsors who sat and thought about this great idea that has helped me achieve the above degree and is still helping many more students other not only Ugandans but I believe even non-Ugandans in any way, once again thank you very much.

Send your letters to:

During the first two years of my study, life was really hard especially when it came to the point of getting tuition fees. I tried here and there to raise tuition, my parents, relatives too tried their best to assist but all in vain, it was not easy to go through the whole journey of three years.

Thinking of the final year, I was puzzled with what I will do to raise the last tuition. This was the time Madhvani Foundation came to my rescue, it was like pulling out some body from deep down a hole who did not believe will have any chances of survival in the next minutes, thank you so much.

Another vote of thanks goes to the publicity committee that was there to alert the public about such an important opportunity that reached me.

I am also seriously in a search for something that could earn me something so that I too give hand to the needy by supporting the Madhvani Foundation to continue with its goals.

Without Madhvani Foundation, I had lost all the hopes for the degree; I had only peeped at the university. The two years I had gone through would be a waste of ample time and pain full money.

Long live Madhvani Foundation, long live Madhvani.

Thank you very much.

 Account No: 01073500057336

Finally I shall end with a short story.

The Wise Woman's Stone

A wise woman who was traveling in the mountains found a precious stone in a stream. The next day she met another traveler who was hungry, and the wise woman opened her bag to share her food. The hungry traveler saw the precious stone and asked the woman to give it to him. She did so without hesitation. The traveler left, rejoicing in his good fortune. He knew the stone was worth enough to give him security for a lifetime. But a few days later he came back to return the stone to the wise woman.

"I've been thinking," he said, "I know how valuable the stone is, but I give it back in the hope that you can give me something even more precious. Give me what you have within you that enabled you to give me the stone."

Message: It's not how much we give but how much love we put into giving.
